NAN PATTERSON RALLIES IN TOMBS CELL AFTER COLLAPSE; JURY DISAGREES

COULD HAZERS ARE SUSPENDED BY COLUMBIA

Four Sophomores Punished for Attempt to "Kidnap" Millionaire's Son, and 800 Students Ask Faculty to Reconsider.

CLASSMATES OF GOULD JOIN IN THE PETITION.

Think Punishment Too Severe for a Prank Recognized by Years of Use in Interclass Warfare at University.

As a result of the attempted kidnapping of Kingdon Gould by a sophomore class committee and the revolver exhibition it caused young Mr. Gould to make four sophomore students of Columbia were suspended to-day. They are A. Algeltinger, A. Doty, Reginald W. Cauchols and J. L. Finch. The suspensions took effect at noon, when the young men were requested to leave the grounds. The time for the expiration of the term of suspension is set at Feb. 6, the beginning of the second half yearly school term.

Immediately the news spread through the university that the four sophs had been suspended there was tremendous excitement. Hotheads talked of organizing a movement to have all the upper classmen strike. There was some talk of the entire sophomore class of the School of Applied Sciences walking out and staying out until the decree of suspension should be evoked.

The petition recites that if Algeltinger, Doty, Cauchols and Finch are suspended now they will be put back in their studies so far that they will be unable to pass the mid-winter examination in the School of Applied Science. Failure to pass this examination practically seals back the student a year. The Columbia student body believes this punishment would be too severe for a boy's prank, long sanctioned by usage at Columbia.

President Butler issued a long statement explaining the suspensions. He says infractions of discipline at Columbia are infrequent and are generally caused by thoughtlessness rather than malice, but that the offense of the four students suspended could not pass unnoted.

"Any annoyance of any individual student," says President Butler, "or any attack upon him by a committee or group of other students, whether this was by the name of hazing or otherwise, will not be tolerated. It appears the attempt to kidnap Gould and McCutcheon was deliberately planned."

ACCUSED OF STEALING FURS.

Storekeeper Says Woman-Prisoner Had Male Accomplice.

Mrs. Kitty Wilson, of No. 235 West Forty-sixth street, alias Mrs. Kate Magamen, of No. 341 East Sixty-second street, was held in $1,000 bail for examination on a charge of grand larceny by Magistrate Hogan in Harlem Court to-day on the complaint of Mrs. Fannie Jansik, a milliner and furrier, of No. 241 Third avenue.

Mrs. Jansik accused the woman of assisting in the theft of furs worth $170 from her store last night. A man who accompanied the prisoner was said by Mrs. Jansik to have taken the furs, and she accused the woman of assisting in the theft. The police are now trying to find the man in the case.

DODGE HERE TO FACE TRIAL FOR PERJURY

After Months of Fighting Former Husband of Banker Morse's Wife Is Brought from Texas by Detectives.

JEROME HOPES TO GET FACTS ABOUT DIVORCE.

To Save Himself from Prison Dodge Is Expected to Tell the Truth Concerning His Queer Matrimonial Tangles.

After months spent in fighting extradition Charles F. Dodge, who has become the principal figure in the Dodge-Morse matrimonial tangle, was landed in this city to-day. The Malory line steamer Lammas, in which Dodge, in charge of New York detectives, sailed from Galveston last Saturday, arrived late this afternoon.

Dodge was immediately taken to Police Headquarters and locked up there. He will be arraigned in General Sessions to-morrow morning.

It has cost this county almost $15,000 to get Dodge here. He is under indictment for perjury, in having made a sworn affidavit to the effect that he was never served with the summons and complaint in his wife's action for divorce.

After Mrs. Dodge got her divorce she married Charles W. Morse, the banker and ice king. Two years after this wedding Dodge suddenly began a proceeding to have the divorce set aside on the ground that he was never properly served with the summons and complaint in the action and that the lawyer who represented him, one Mortimer Ruger, now dead, had no authority to appear as his attorney.

The divorce was set aside and then Mrs. Morse began an action for the annulment of her marriage to Morse. The Supreme Court annulled the marriage. Later when evidence was produced to show that Dodge had been properly served and knew all about his wife's divorce, the order of the court setting aside the divorce proceedings was reversed. Then the annulment of the marriage to Morse was set aside, leaving Mrs. Morse again the wife of the ice king and the divorced wife of Dodge.

Evidence was then presented to the District Attorney to show that Dodge had been in collusion with certain New Yorkers to obtain money from Mr. Morse.

There was no positive evidence of this, however, so Dodge was indicted for perjury. From the first the New York authorities found themselves in the greatest difficulties about getting Dodge back here. He seemed to have unlimited money to fight with. He was finally arrested and the fight to extradite him began.

He was released on bail, and then got an order from the Texas courts enjoining the detectives from shadowing him. Later the United States courts took a hand in the matter and overruled the Texas courts. Dodge succeeded in fighting out extradition for months. In the mean time Mr. Jerome had to have a special appropriation of $15,000 to pay the expenses of the case.

Dodge's trial is expected to be most sensational. It is generally understood that he is the smallest fish in the puddle and that Mr. Jerome intends to involve a prominent firm of lawyers and several individuals in a gigantic blackmailing scheme of which Mr. Morse was to be the victim.

Dodge was in charge of Chief Deputy United States Marshal Hanson and Detectives Gormack and Vane, of Texas. Detectives Herlihy and Jesse, of District Attorney Jerome's office, were with them, as was Nathaniel Cohen, of Howe & Hummel's office. They were met by Mr. Kaffenbergh, of that firm, and after the crowd had thinned out Dodge was taken to Police Headquarters.

NEGRO BURNED AT THE STAKE

Georgia Mob Takes Victim from Home and Puts Him to Death on Charge of Being Member of Assassin Band.

ATLANTA, Ga., Dec. 22.—The Journal has received a report that a negro has been burned at the stake at Norwood, Ga. Norwood is on the Georgia Railroad, about fifty miles west of Augusta.

One report is that the victim was accused of being a member of the "Be-fore Day Club," an assassin band that has been shooting from ambush white men prominent in various communities.

It is said he was directly accused of such a crime, taken from his home and burned. Name and details, however, are lacking.

LAWYERS IN A WRANGLE OVER DODGE

Charles F. Dodge, former husband of Mrs. Charles W. Morse, in the custody of a Deputy United States Marshal, reached Police Headquarters at 6 o'clock in a cab, followed in another cab by Detective Huihy and other policemen.

The prisoner was taken straight up to Commissioner McCoo's office, and admittance was denied to all others—even Huihy being excluded for a time, though three Assistant District Attorneys were in the room.

Meanwhile Barton S. Weeks, Abraham H. Hummel and A. H. Kaffenbergh, of counsel for Dodge, were waiting for his arrival in Chief McCusky's office. When they learned that Dodge was in the building they hastened to the Commissioner's office and clamored to be permitted to see their client.

There was a long discussion going on inside as to whether the Marshal should retain custody and lodge Dodge in the Tombs or should turn him over to the police immediately.
